County Demographics
The health of a place results from past and present policies and practices. The land known as Genesee County, along with the entirety of the U.S., has been home for many thousands of years to hundreds of Indigenous nations. Native Land Digital "strives to create and foster conversations about the history of colonialism, Indigenous ways of knowing, and settler-Indigenous relations."
Genesee County, Michigan is Metropolitan and is connected to the city of Flint. In Genesee County, 18.2% of the population lives in a low population density area. Genesee County contains neighborhoods which experienced intentional disinvestment through Federal HOLC Redlining between 1935 and 1940
